Join Us in Holland for the 16th Slice of Life!

Hosted at the:
Academic Medical Center at the University of Amsterdam and Leiden University Medical Center

For Medical Multimedia Developers and Educators

What is Slice of Life?

A conference where medical and health science educators gather from around the world to explore and share the uses of multimedia and information technology in medical education. The focus is on cutting edge developments, implementation of courseware, eLearning, web enhanced curricula, wireless mobile computing, graphic design, animation, and digital video. Curricular integration, sharing, and evaluation are very central themes. Think of the many ways you can contribute and learn!

Why Should You Attend?

Over 200 multimedia educators and developers attend each year gathering to share ideas about medical education.

You have the opportunity to develop your own pre-workshop, poster or demonstration and share your ideas with your peers.

Find out about the latest and greatest technologies in medical education.

Slice of Life always includes educational sessions and social events such as welcome receptions, the traditional Welcome Dinner and the Grand Extravaganza.

Amsterdam and Leiden are wonderful places to travel and meet new friends as well as socializing with your old acquaintances.

After Slice of Life is over attend the Ottawa Conference for Medical Education in Barcelona from July 6 - 8, 2004!

June 28 - June 30: Pre-Workshops

Join us in Amsterdam for the pre-workshops and networking with peers. Pre-workshops are hands-on and lecture/demo tutorials, where you can learn new multimedia techniques from an international group of experts.

July 1 - July 3: Conference

Join us in Leiden for the main conference, which includes plenary talks, electronic posters, computer and handheld demonstrations, breakout sessions and panels. Slice of Life 2004 features invited speakers and selected presentations, where you can benefit from the viewpoints of experienced specialists in a cooperative atmosphere.

Subscribe to the Slice of Life email list at http://www.jiscmail.ac.uk/lists/slice_of_life.html for the latest news about Slice of Life 2004!